Diet

The kind of food you feed your pets is going to determine how many health problems your pet has to endure. We are what we eat, and animals are not healthy on diseased and decayed meat and dead grains. Do some research on the internet or at your local library about what's in pet foods and then make the choice to feed your pet natural foods plus raw veggies.

Nature's Sunshine Products

The above products are offered by Nature's Sunshine. It's the only line of supplements I use for my family and pets. They've been in business over 30 years and they are unsurpassed in quality so you won't have to worry about contamination or whether they use the parts of the plant that contain the active constituents you want so the herbs will work.

Find out more about these products and others on my website link below. If you have any questions be sure to contact us.
